SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

As I look back on the history of the Senior Class of '51, I realize that there has never been a class who has had so much fun. Then, looking farther back, I remember how different we all used to be.

Remember our first few weeks of school? We all thought it pretty marvelous that little Madge and Max Robinson were actually twins. And remember how bashful Max was for the first few weeks? Madge even had to answer the roll call for him for a long time. Of course, this is all hard to believe now.

Many of our other classmates started with us in the first grade, also. Do you recall how many fights little Nancy Stephenson had over her boy-friends? She had a different one every week. My! Isn't young love grand!

And do you remember how Carolyn Marsh used to sit in a classroom for hours and hours without uttering a sound? This, too, sounds fantastic, but it's absolutely the truth.

So, the years went by. They were happy, joyful years and ones that will always be engraved upon our memories. I can see little Madge Burgess now, sitting so prim and quiet in the seventh and eighth grades. (She's changed since then.) She had her eye on the little boys in those days, too, but you certainly couldn't get her to admit it.

But Sarah Lou Guest? Why, I thought she was going to be a man-hater for the rest of her life by the way she scorned those "silly boys" (as she so aptly put it). She certainly surprised us, though, didn't she?

Who could forget Clara Ramsey and her art? Every time we looked at Clara, she always had pencil and paper, (but not for any studying purposes). She always got by, though, didn't she? And many times with flying colors.

Then, in the eighth grade, David Cassell and Betty Jo McNeese joined us. David had been here before, but it was Betty Jo's first year. She was a little shy at first, but David never was. Remember the cute valentines he used to give to the girls.

That year a fatal thing happened! Ann Williams joined our class. She had the boys up in the clouds for awhile, but they finally settled down.

Who could forget Herbert Tankersly and Bobby Brown? They always had the best time in Mrs. Buchanan's Science Class. (It's a pity that they are still the same.)

In the ninth, tenth, and eleventh grades, we lost a good many of our classmates but gained a few in return.

Remember when Jo Ann Smith joined our class in the tenth grade? We all liked her at once. What would our class be, now, without Jo Ann?

Then, Jean Clark came back from California to join our class. Jean was another one who had a new boy-friend every week and liked each one a little better. I think she has settled for one, now.

Who could forget Mr. Meritt's history class in the eleventh grade? Remember all the arguments we got into over nothing? Sometimes I get a sneaky feeling that we just did that to keep from having a class, but of course, this is just my imagination.

Speaking of arguments reminds me of a good many of our classmates that have left us — Doris Hannon, Madge Robinson, Vivian Hughes, Lila Barker, and Doris Hayden.

As we all know, Doris Hannon, Madge and Lila decided to take on a full time job with full time boss, their husbands. We weren't surprised at Madge, though, because Gerhard had been a household word of our class for three years.

Vivian and Doris Hayden went to other schools and we miss them very much. Wonder if Vivian ever thinks about Mr. Merritt? She should — she almost caused his hair to turn gray.

And remember our class play and how quiet, reserved, Calvin Cox surprised us by being one of the best and funniest actors in the play? (By the way, he still kept a fresh reserve of jokes on hand to crack in English class every morning!)

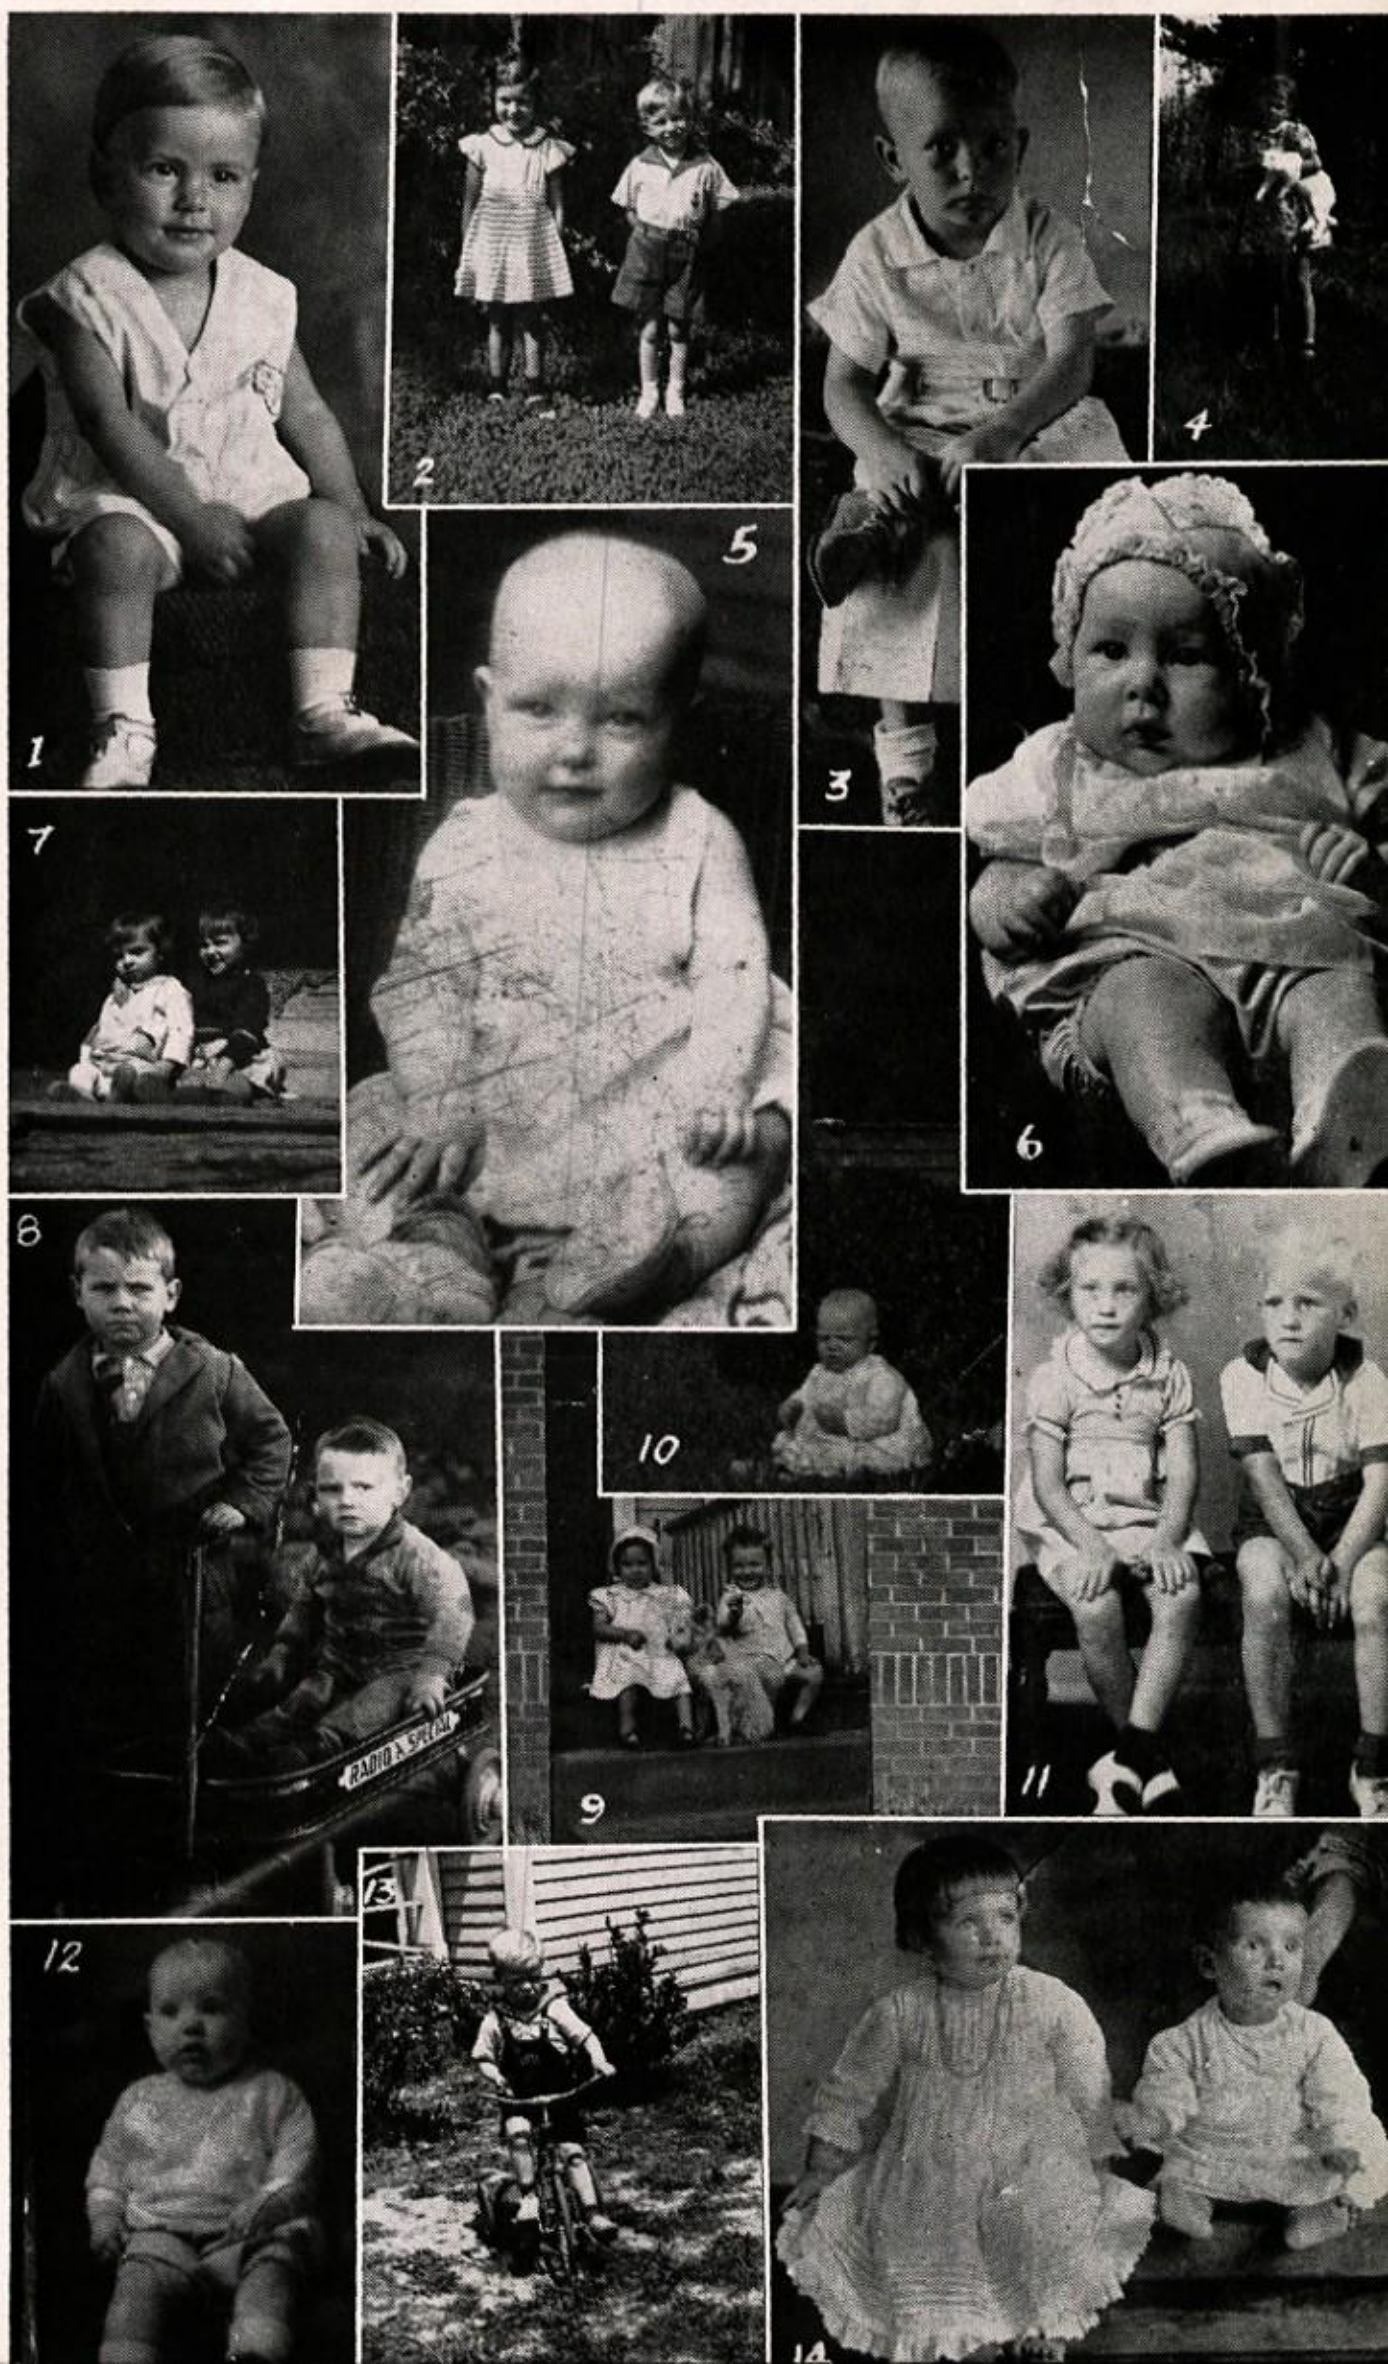

We will bid farewell to all our friends before long, and depart upon a new life. To Mrs. Cleveland, who has been so close to each of us, we will say farewell. We will never forget her. Neither shall we forget Mr. Sechrest, with whom we've discussed everything from the world situation, down to how to look your best in a photograph.

Yes, there will be tears in our hearts and eyes, but we will never forget these happy years we've spent within the walls of S. M. S.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF '51

We, the Senior Class of 1951, do hereby make this our last will and testament as follows:

To the entire school, we bestow our ability of getting along with everyone. We leave our record of having more fun than any other class has ever had.

To the Junior Class, we bestow the pleasure and privileges of belonging to Senior processional, with the hope that they may keep step to the music as well as we did.

We will never forget the faculty and will cherish their memories in the days to come.

To our Superintendent, Mr. Barnett, we bestow our appreciation for his wonderful aid and ideals throughout our school life and also for his example of a beautiful life, which he lived to the fullest, and through which we have seen the rays of true happiness.

To our Principal and Democracy teacher, Mr. Sechrest, we bestow our sincerest thanks for his kind guidance, understanding, and suggestions in the happy experiences and more serious problems of our high school career, also for his sympathy with our joys and sorrows, successes and failures, ambitions and enterprises.

To Mrs. Cleveland, our Senior Class and J. H. A. sponsor, we bequeath our truest love, deepest devotion, and our heartiest appreciation of her untiring efforts and patience in our behalf to make the Senior Class a brilliant success.

To Mrs. Wakefie'd, our Algebra teacher, we will the pencil sharpener, since it was so faithful to sharpen the pencils which enabled us to hand in perfect classwork each day — thus making us the most brilliant algebra students to walk the halls of Slater-Marietta.

To Mr. Causey, our English teacher, we bequeath our sincere appreciation for his unceasing efforts to teach us not to say "ain't" and talk without chewing gum. We hope the incoming Seniors will not lose as much sleep as we did making all "A's."

To Mrs. Batson, our Commercial teacher, we will our deepest love for her corrections of us when most needed and her praise of us when our spirits lagged and things went wrong in general — for her understanding heart — for herself.

To Mrs. Jarrard, we bequeath our Biology notebooks and pens and we sincerely hope the twenty-five cent ball point pens will never go out of style, since that is all any Senior could afford. We also bestow to her our neatness as the Seniors never turn in untidy notebooks.

To Mr. Merritt goes the pleasure of not having to teach any Seniors next year. We will him also a handkerchief to wipe the tears he shed at not having us in his room.

To Mr. Woodruff, we bestow our unanimous appreciation for his faithfulness in making our football team famous and memorable.

To Mrs. Martin, we will our sincere appreciation and love for her constant thoughtfulness and willingness to further the best interests of the class of '51.

To Mrs. Collins, we bestow our sincere gratitude for her ready and willing guidance to help us.

To Miss Lingle, we will our squeaky voices, knowing that she has accomplished much with the material she had to work with.

Fully realizing that we are about to complete this lap of the journey of life and to end our days at Slater-Marietta, we now wish to dispose of our many acquired possessions and personal bestowals as follows:

I, B. B. Brown, do hereby will to Gene Addington, my high grades in algebra and general math. I also will to Broadus Guest my ability to make all "A's" in Democracy.

I, Madge Burgess, do hereby bestow upon Bobby Sprouse, my ability to write good editorials. I also will to Kathryn Moody, my great amount of common sense.

I, David Cassell, do hereby bequeath to J. H. Bowles, my ability to ring bells on time. I also bestow upon Betty Ruth Moody, my ability to run the canteen.

I, Jean Clark, do hereby will to Susie Johnson, my honest attempt to be dignified. I also bequeath to Shirley Moon, my day dreaming moods in class, provided she pays attention in class as I did.

I, Calvin Cox, do hereby bestow upon Bobby Cole, my ability to tell jokes, hoping that he will always leave the point out as I did, thus causing much concern. I also will to Roe Anderson, my ability to do bookkeeping.

I, Sara Lou Guest, do hereby bequeath to Ann Epps, my ability to get along with boys. I also bestow upon Joyce Hargrove, my chewing gum, hoping she will enjoy chewing it as much as I have.

I, Carolyn Marsh, do hereby bequeath to Reid Drury, my ability to find information in the encyclopedia. I also will to Bobbie Jean Shirley, my fondness for "Devil's Dip" and black Pontiac's.

I, Betty Jo McNeese, do hereby bestow upon Doris Camden, my ability to "snort." I also bequeath to Joan Mullinax, my quiet shy manners, in hopes that she will reform.

I, Larry Moon, do hereby will to Herbert Farthing, my study hall. I also bequeath to Weldon Gosnell, my ability to make all "A's" in English.

I, Max Robinson, do hereby bestow upon Bobby Johnson, my perfect attendance.

I, Jo Ann Smith, do hereby bequeath to Elsie Johnson, my ability to take notes fast, provided she can read it as well as I did. I also bestow upon Herbert Farthing, my ability to be tall since he is so short and tired of looking up at everyone.

I, Nancy Stephenson do hereby will to Freida Wyatt, my ability to work algebra so well. I also bestow upon Jessie Clyde Poole, my ability to play the piano.

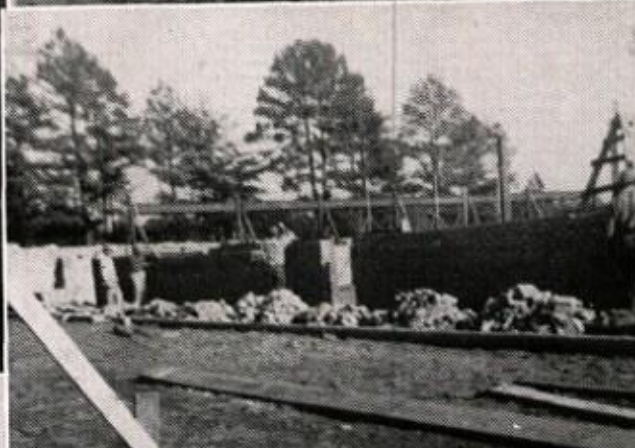

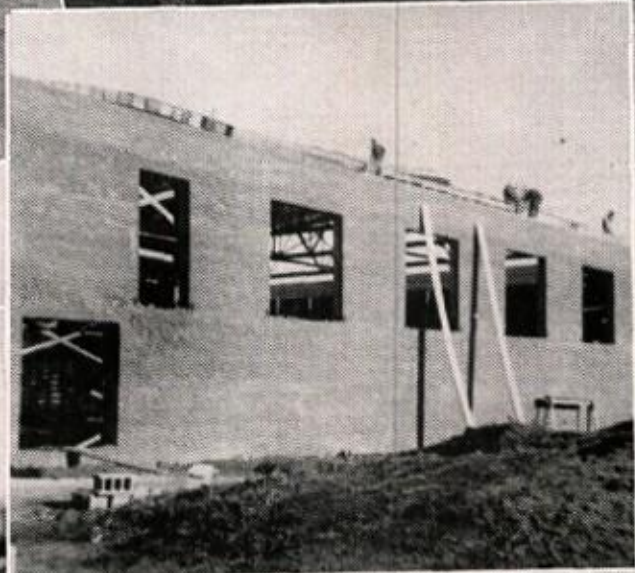

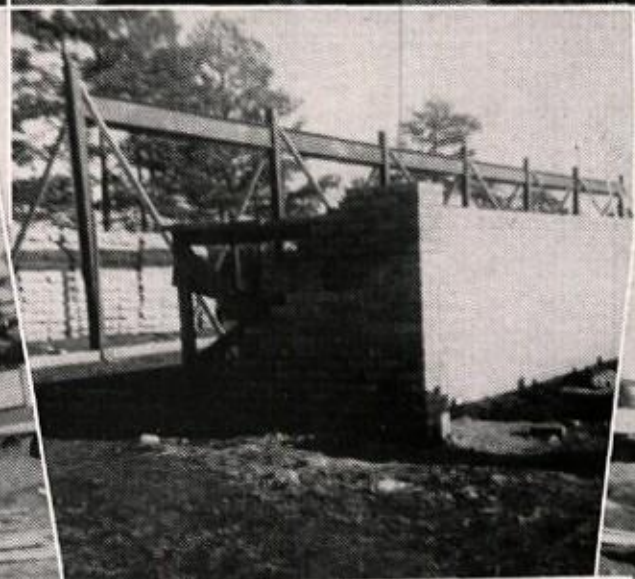

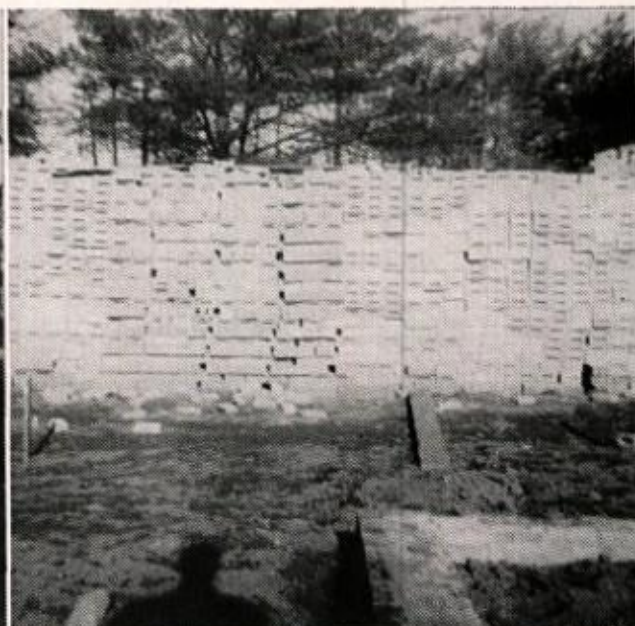

I, Herbert Tankersley, do hereby will to Louie Wallace, my winning ways with girls. I also bestow upon Donald Lane, my ability to be a football star, as they will need a full moon next year.

I, Ann Williams, do hereby bequeath to Bobbie Jo Talley, the privilege of using my charge account at Woolworth's Dime Store. I also will to Betty Jo Barnett, my habit of studying "too much," provided she keeps it from the teachers as well as I have.

This concludes the last will and testament of the present Seniors. In witness whereof, we attach the signatures of this wonderful class.

ANN WILLIAMS

The Construction of our New School

"SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY"

Last night while lying in bed, a mighty hush fell over me. In my imagination, I could see the Senior Class of '51 as each one climbed the ladder of success.

First of all, I see our beloved sponsor, Mrs. James N. Cleveland, II, as she cares for her five little red-headed boys. She is still serving — but not in the school.

Next, I see Mr. Ernest Sechrest, Jr., who was our handsome principal. He no longer is giving instructions to the high school, but is taking them from a lovely young lady, with whom he is touring Europe.

Now, I see Mr. Barnett, who served so faithfully as our Superintendent, and his wife. Time has not changed, because they are still happy sweethearts.

Glancing in the opposite direction, I see Mrs. Carrie Batson, who was our wonderful commercial teacher. I hardly recognize her, as she has lost so much weight. She and Mr. Batson are living in Rock Hill, South Carolina, where Mrs. Batson is teaching at Winthrop.

Then, I see Mr. Merritt, who was our history teacher. He is no longer in the history department of Slater-Marietta, but is teaching Bible History in one of our greatest institutions. In his spare time he is writing "poetry."

I now see a couple in their lovely home, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Wakefield. She is no longer teaching at Slater-Marietta, as her houseful of children claim all of her attention. There is no longer any secret as to why in 1950 they built such a huge house!

I see Mrs. Henry Jarrard, who was the new science teacher when we were seniors, is still faithfully teaching in the large convenient science department.

Next, comes our attractive music teacher, Miss Joyce Lingle. She is now married to one of our Slater boys and they are living in Pumpkin Town, where she is teaching voice.

Oh! What is this I see? A man, but I can't quite tell what kind of hair he has. Oh, I know why! It is none other than our English professor, Mr. Donald Causey. I see him sitting in a rocking chair viewing the river, camellias and cows. This is his daily task, since he retired.

Next, appears Mrs. Guyrene Collins, who was the seventh and eighth grade teacher. Since she was so good at keeping law and order in her classroom, she is now principal of the Slater-Marietta School.

I now see Mrs. Blanche Martin appearing, another seventh and eighth grade teacher. She took Mr. Causey's place as the English teacher.

My thoughts of the teachers disappear and I see all of my classmates.

First of all, I see a very sweet girl appear, Nancy Stephenson. She is no longer a school girl, but a housekeeper. She is doing a fine job teaching the little boy and girl their ABC's.

Next, comes the most athletic boy in our class, Max Robinson. We had such a hard time getting Maxie to school every day. He is now playing with the "Green Waves" in New York.

I now see a very benign person, Madge Burgess, who is teaching Home Economics at the Slater-Marietta High School. She took Mrs. Cleveland's place and is doing a wonderful job.

Next, I see Larry Moon, formerly known as the "Shilow Kid," who owns and operates a very large concern in Marietta. He is now married to Elizabeth Clary. They have several little "taters."

Are my eyes deceiving me, or am I seeing right? Yes, it is Mr. and Mrs. Gene Spivey rolling two carriages around. We all remember this very attractive girl, the former Jo Ann Smith. They are making their home in Florida.

Here comes a tall man, who was always bashful, Herbert Tankersley. He has taken his father's place and is driving the school bus. He isn't married yet, but maybe some day he will get the nerve to "pop" the question.

Now appears a tiny figure, Mrs. Bud Garland, formerly Jean Clark. She was sporting a diamond before we finished school, which made the girls all envy her. They are married and living in California.

I now see the most handsome boy in our class appearing, David Cassell. He is still in "Fortner Town," manager of a large super market. He also runs a bus every morning so the Pickens "gang" will have a way to school.

Now I see a blonde headed girl approaching and is just who I thought it was, Sarah Lou Guest. She isn't married, but it looks as if it won't be long. She owns the cafe in Marietta and surely does serve good meals.

Yes, I now see the most intellectual boy in our class, Mr. Calvin Cox. He is working in Washington and married to the former Peggy Rose Waddell.

Next, I see a very brilliant girl, Carolyn Marsh. She is editor of the very famous magazine, "Girls and Their Problems," a weekly publication in Slater. Carolyn is hoping to move to Cliffside soon where she will be no longer giving advice, but taking it from a handsome young man!

I now see Bobby Brown, who was in our class. It was always hard for B. B. to pronounce the "syllabication" of words, but soon found out that it was only syllables he had to pronounce. He followed in his Daddy's footsteps and is now a minister.

Oh! What is this I now see? Yes, it is a lovely black headed girl, Mrs. Maynard Veal, formerly known as Ann Williams. Ann was always liked by everyone and is now liked by someone very special! They are living in Greenville where Maynard is Mr. Williams' assistant at the Gas Company.

And waking from this lovely dream, I see myself the official secretary in the newly constructed high school, living with a group of "old maids," and thinking only of the school and its needs.

“Senior Class 1951”

To the walls of Dear Ole S. M. S.

We bid our last farewell.

Our work; our play

Will be a memory to tell.

It seems so strange to think of parting

As yesterday it seems we only started.

Strange to part, our classmates,

teachers and friends;

Together we have walked down the road of school-life to the end.

We've lived in a city all our own,

With those who have guided us each day;

To reach the aims that we had planned,

And then to travel on our way.

These walls are full of memories,

Trying to reach our goal.

Now the goal is nearing and Soon our future can be told.

Some will travel on

To higher things, we pray,

But we can always look back

With pride,

To this—Our Graduation Day.

Jean Clark
